Interesting Correspondence. The following correspondence relating to th State debt and the ability to pay it will be read with interest :

LOVINGSTON, NELSON COUNTY, VA., ?

August 9, 1879.)
General Asa Rogers, Second Auditor of Virginia: Dear Sir-The stomp speakers and others who are opposing the readjustment of the State debt under the act of March 28, 1879, common. ly known as the McCultoch not, persistently charge that, under the process of refunding, the State pays double interest for a certain paried. For instance: They allege that the rate of 3 per cent. interest is paid from January 1, 1879. [the date fixed for all the new boods, to July 1, 1879, on the new boods issued under said act, and that the rate of 6 per cent, interest is paid for same period of six months on the old bonds, and so on.

To my mind, (this, lik) many other objections urged against the debt settlement, is clearly without foundation, as the said act expressly provides against it. But as this is a matter of great public interest, and as you are charged officially with the duty of refunding the State debt, I will thank you to address me a letter in reply giving your view. It is due to the advocates of readjustment that the public have au

My Dear Six-jours of to day is received. You are right. There can be no sach thing as double pay ment or double funding of interest.

The bonds are all dated Jan. 1, 1879, but they only carry interest from the time of fund-Very truly yours. ASA ROGEUS, Second Auditor.

Hon. William F. Taylor, First Auditor of Virginia : Dear Sir-The total amount of old indebted. ness presented to the Second Auditor for fund. ing to July 1st was $5,391,945,24; of which

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHPLACE -A Washington dispatch states that owing to the intense heat Mr. Evarts determined to delay his visit to the birthplace of Washington, in connection with the erection of a monument there until after his return from Vermont. Meanwhile, however, he is in receipt of much interesting and valuable information respecting the previous action by members of the Westington family and the State of Virginia in making some suitable commemoration of the birthplace of the General of the Armies of Independence and the first President of the United States. From the correspondence on the subject it appears that Lawis W. Washington, son of Gao. Corbin Washington, by deed dated in Septemher, 1858, cooveyed to the Commonwealth of Virginia, the family burying ground, and also sixty quare feet of ground, on which stood the house to which Gen. Washington was bern, on condition that the State should cause these places to be permanently inclosed by an iron fecce "based on a stone foundation," and should mark the same by "suitable and substantial tablets." By deed of August 1, 1859, John E. Wilson, in order to carry out the object of the Assembly of Virginia, as expressed in an act passed June 23, 1853, emveyed to the State a road and public right of way to the burying ground and the sixty square feet conveyed by Liwis W. Washington. He also conveyed by the same deed enough laud at the site of the birthplace to make up with the sixty feet one acre of land and a half acre of the burying ground. The ou break of the late war soon after, and the subsequent poverty of the State, have prevented any action being taken. The resolution of Congress appropriating three thousand dillars for the purpose of permanently marking the site is entire y acceptible to the living members of the Washington family, and at the proper time arrangements will be made to effect a cession of the territorial rights and privileges deeded to the Commonwealth of Virgiois to the Government of the United States.

It has been suggested to Mr. Evarts that the house be restored, as a chimney and a few bricks are still there to mark the spot. The Scretary however does not favor this suggestion, as he says that it would not have the sacred memories of the humble structure in which Wastington first saw the light, and in which the voice of his infacey and childhood were heard. He rather favors the restoration of the bricks scattered about the site in the mocumental pile. THE GREATEST INVENTION OF THE AGE-Keep cool in warm weather, and use A. A.
